WEATHER FORECAST—Wednesday fair.

The Second Day of Our Easter Opening.

From top to bottom the store is attractive in its Spring Dress, and after the rain of Monday, throngs of people were pouring in all day yesterday from Broad street and Sixth street, despite the threatening clouds. By the way, our Sixth Street windows are especially attractive just now with their showing of exquisitely fashioned French Hand-Made Underwear and dainty, filmy Laces for spring dresses.

Spring merchandise was the attraction, and it might be worth while to mention a few of the things that were called for—most particularly in the way of Dress Fabrics and Garments. Voiles, Eolienne Cloth, Crepe Erythra and Melange twines were the favorites in woven goods, whilst printed Taffetas and Foulards for shirt waist suits were the popular things among silks.

The Japanese Silks were also much in demand.

Among the cotton dress goods Jacqueline Crepes, Soie Persanne, Nub Suitings and Mousseline Lappet, met with the fancy of most women.

On the second floor the Suit Department had a run on Voile Skirts. We have them from $5.00 to $30.00; with seven different styles at $10.00.

All over the house 'twas the same way—The spirit of spring was in the air.

Thilow's Orchestra was much appreciated yesterday.

The concert will continue to-day and to-morrow.

To-day's programme is given below:

WILLIE HILL AGAIN GOES TO THE JURY

Pistol Toters Get Into Trouble.

Court of Justice John.

Justice John had a number of important cases sandwiched in a docket full of drunks and small disorders yesterday morning.

Willie Hill, already sent on, went to court, and will have to answer the charge of stealing some coats from Fred Wilson by main force.

William Cary got six months for taking clothing belonging to Ralph Lomax.

James Sparks, the window smasher with already enough to put him away for life, was dismissed of the charge of smashing Bachrach's window.

Ralph Warren paid $20 for shooting a pistol in the street.

So did Walter Mayo.

George Gary was fined $20 and given six months custody for hitting Leroy Henderson over the head with a brick.

Robert Hill was to disorderly and created so much disturbance that $20 was necessary to soothe the wounded peace and dignity of the Commonwealth.

IN THE RAILWAY WORLD.

C. & O. Preparing for a Great World's Fair Business.

President George W. Stevens of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, with his family, has returned from Florida, after spending a fortnight there. Mr. Stevens has gone to Pittsburgh to attend a rail-road association meeting. He will return to the city the latter part of the week.

Mr. W. J. May, lately city ticket agent of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, left Sunday for San Antonio, Texas, where he will be connected with the passenger department of the Southern Pacific Railway. He has been with the Seaboard in this city for about two years, but gave up his position.

Mr. T. S. Lloyd, announcement of whose replacement of the position of superintendent of motive power of the Lackawanna Railway system to accept the more responsible and desirable position of general superintendent of motive power of the Rock Island system, is widely known.

In this city, where up to four years ago he was employed as master mechanic of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway. He resided in this city for about eight years, and when he left here to go to the Lackawanna he was tendered a dinner at the Jefferson by his associates and friends, which was a real letter event in local railway history. It may interest the friends of Mr. Lloyd to know that the position to which he goes is considered the most desirable position in the motive power department and the highest salary in the world. That he should thus have attained the top of the ladder in his branch of railroading is a noteworthy achievement.

Mr. P. J. Parker, formerly with Agent E. B. Swan, of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, has accepted the position of stenographer in the office of Division Freight Agent Boykin, of the Seaboard Air Line, succeeding Mr. Frank Schuman.

District Passenger Agent C. H. Bonney, of the Norfolk and Western Railway, spent yesterday in Petersburg on business for the road.

"The return movement of Florida and South is now in full swing," said Passenger Agent Campbell, of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, yesterday. "And many are still going," he added. "We have had a very good season, and have gotten a liberal share of the business."

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway will be prepared to handle every one who desires to attend the launching of the battleship Virginia at Newport News April 30, and District Passenger Agent Warthen is busy making preparations for what is expected to be the largest launching crowd ever hauled to the ship-building city. There will be first-class accommodations for all who desire to go on the route from the East to the launching will be arranged.

The passenger department of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway has been busy for weeks sending out advertising matter and preparing for the greater passenger business in the history of the road. The Chesapeake and Ohio will carry a large share of the eastern travel to the St. Louis World's Exposition, and is preparing to offer to be prepared to handle the great tide of tourists with promptness and satisfactory service. It will miss the biggest year's passenger business in the history of the road. The Chesapeake and Ohio is the most direct through route from the East to the Exposition.

The Rock Island system, is widely known.

LEGISLATORS HAVE GONE

The General Assembly Adjourns and Members Leave for Their Homes.

MR. STUBBS'S REMINISCENCES

The Veteran Member's Valedictory a Review of the History of the Capitol.

The General Assembly of 1903-4 adjourned sine die shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning, formally concluding the first sixty-day session required under the new Constitution. The final session was a merely perfunctory, formal affair, absolutely devoid of any results, and but a compliance with the requirements of law and custom. The Senate and House did nothing more than name the committees to communicate with the Governor and inform him that the body was ready to adjourn, and after these formalities had been complied with the sessions were formally declared at an end, the Senate adjourning to the second Wednesday in January, 1905, and the House adjourning sine die. The only feature of the Senate session was a speech by Mr. Barksdale on the primary matter and the newspaper discussion incident thereto, in the course of which he indulged in some characteristic criticisms of this paper.

The Senate.

There were but eight senators present, just one-fifth of the membership of the body, when Lieutenant-Governor Willard called the body to order, and after the opening formalities announced, as a matter of course, that the speaker from Halifax had the floor. The senators present were Messrs. Barksdale, Campbell, Cromwell, Harman, Machen, Phlegar, Sadler and Sale.

The usual resolution from the House, providing for naming committees to wait on the Governor and inform him that the General Assembly was ready to adjourn, was received and passed.

Mr. Barksdale resumed speaking, defending the juror senator from Virginia against the intimation in the press that he was in any way responsible for the defeat of the Machen bill, and declaring that he spoke for himself alone, and not for Senator Martin. The press, he said, had done the senator from Virginia a serious injustice in attributing the defeat of the Machen bill to him. Mr. Barksdale then indulged in some criticisms of this paper, charging that it had changed front on the very bill concerning the defeat of which it was indulging in strictures on the General Assembly. He declared that the agitation over the failure of the primary bill had had the effect of unmasking the position of one of the city papers with regard to the senatorial contest. He charged that the Times-Dispatch had devoted considerable space to attacking him and his position in the primary matter, yet two weeks ago it had stated that the Times-Dispatch was in the Machen bill, and concluding, he stated that he was entitled to and was willing to accept all the responsibility, the praise or the blame, for the defeat of the amended Machen bill.

Mr. Machen took the floor in objection to Mr. Harman's motion to pass by, and in doing so spoke in a somewhat facetious vein. He declared that it was rather unusual and unnecessary to pass by a corpse. The bill had met death in a cruel and unusual way, being talked to death by the Times-Dispatch. Lieutenant-Governor Willard announced the appointment of Mr. Machen as a member of the joint committee to confer with a similar committee from the Maryland Legislature in the matter of recommending concurrent oyster legislation by the two States.

The committees from the Governor returned at this point, announcing that the Governor had no further communication to make, but expresses his good wishes for the members of the Assembly. Lieutenant-Governor Willard recognized the speaker from Halifax to make his usual motion—that the Senate do now adjourn. The motion was adopted and the President of the Senate formally declared it.

TELLS PATHETIC STORY.

Major Stubbs Grows Reminiscent Regarding Old Capital.

But a single feature marked the dying hours of the General Assembly when the gavel of the two presiding officers fell simultaneously at 10:12 o'clock and heralded forth that the session of 1904 had taken its place in the annals of the Commonwealth, and had become "a tale that is told."

And yet this feature was a significant and impressive one, for it marked the end of legislative work within a structure whose very walls vibrate with sacred memories, and whose every doorway seems to lead to deeds that are noble and to men whose memories are enshrined forever in the hearts of a brave and chivalrous people.

Over in the Senate, no reference was made to the innovation now about to break upon the people of the State, through their proposed new capital building, nor need there have been any, for it was in this historic arena that the great battle was fought and won. The closing ceremonies here were entirely formal and beyond some further allusion to the past, there was nothing to be said relative to the defeat of the Machen primary bill, there was nothing to stir public interest.

The usual committees to wait upon the Governor and the House were named, and having reported on the dull duty of President Willard's gavel told the story of the death of the Senate of 1904.

PATHETIC STORY TOLD.

But the feature was in the House hall, where but a dozen members had lingered to witness the final scenes. A quarter of a century ago, when the old capital building, now known as the State House, was a new and modern structure, it was a scene of great interest and a full attendance of members is desired.

Must Stand Trial.

Governor Montague has honored a resolution from the Governor of West Virginia, passed by the Legislature of that State, for one Marshall Morton, who is in jail for murder, and who is in jail in Newport News.

The Excellency has issued a like paper on the Governor of South Carolina, for James Burns, who is wanted in Fredericksburg for murder.

Collyer on Trial.

The Hustings Court was engaged yesterday in the trial of A. S. Collyer, who is charged with having committed fraud in passing a spurious draft on the Jefferson Hotel. Captain George P. J. J. is defending the man, and the trial will likely be completed to-day.

Small Judgment.

In the Circuit Court yesterday, in the matter of R. L. Curtis vs. F. Jacobs and Company, pawnbrokers, for the recovery of a watch valued at $25.00, the jury found for the plaintiff.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT Cures Rheumatism

people, which raised the man in black to political equality with his erstwhile master.

He had passed through the troubled waters of reconstruction and had seen the blood and tears shed by his people as the result of a drama many of whose important scenes were laid where he then stood.

With evident feeling, Major Stubbs turned and drew graphically the other side of the picture. He referred to the recent Constitutional Convention as having been composed of the pick and dower of the Commonwealth, who had lifted the white man's burden and liberated the thoughts and energies of a free people, and to the resolutions which, coming not in the angry swell of war, as the legislative and executive officers, and all these innovations had been wrought in his time and upon the spot soon to be given such widely different appearance.

In the chair above, where at that moment sat a young executive, a creature of new and more enlightened constitution, he told of the old constitution which had resulted from the best thought of his State, he had shown the highest rights of his people to be signed away by Governors chosen by the unholy alliance of carpetbaggers and negroes.

Major Stubbs's mind reverted to those times as he spoke, and he related those things which indicated that his quarter of a century in political life had extended over a period in which there had often been violent political innovations.

This story above is the only one of human interest that marked the dying hours of the session of 1904.

GOVERNOR WELL UP.

Has Nearly Completed the Signing of New Bills.

Governor Montague worked up to a late hour last night, struggling to get through with his signing of the work of the Legislature.

His Excellency is reading them all personally, and the task is no light one. There are several very interesting and important measures which have not yet been taken up by the Governor, and he is not yet known. One of these bills is that to allow the supervisors of Norfolk county to reduce the franchise tax on corporations, and still another to amend the Sunday liquor-selling laws.

Mr. Governor has two days after the adjournment of the Legislature in which to dispose of the bills passed.

MR. WYSOR RESIGNS.

Second Clerk to Corporation Commission Resumes Business.

Mr. B. J. Wysor, of Russell county, second clerk to the State Corporation Commission, has resigned his position and in the next day, or two, the commission will announce his successor.

Mr. Wysor, who is a man of means, has for some time had under advisement the question of resuming some business relations in his section of the State, and his resignation was not unanticipated.

His resignation has practically been accepted, and is believed that the commission has virtually determined who shall succeed him.

Mr. Wysor is a man of able manners and made a good many friends while in the city. The place which he voluntarily surrenders pays $1,500 per year.

New Pictures for the Library.

There have recently been made some notable additions to the portrait gallery by the State Library. The library has received and will soon have in place on the walls splendid pictures of Governor Nichols, Edmund Jennings, John T. Johnston and John C. Hunter, the president of the late Constitutional Convention.

The portrait gallery has recently been improved and beautified, and attracts more visitors daily than ever before.

Mainly About People.

Judge Edmund Waddill left the city yesterday morning, to be absent a day or two on official business.

Charles E. Brown, a prominent member of the Lynchburg bar, is in attendance upon the Supreme Court of Appeals.

Judge Charles E. Brown, of Massachusetts, was in the city yesterday.

Dr. Duncan M. Brown, superintendent of public schools of Petersburg, was in the city yesterday.

Fair To-day.

Conditions are favorable for fair weather to-day. A sharp frost is expected, but stayed long enough to recall old times and cause many a shiver under the bidding spring clothes. The temperature was rather high yesterday, and no decided change in this line is expected to-day.

North Carolina Society.

As heretofore announced, the North Carolina Society of the Commonwealth held a called meeting at the T. F. A. rooms, No. 201 East Main Street, at 8 o'clock to-night. Secretary W. L. Poulson says that it will be a very important meeting, and a full attendance of members is desired.

Must Stand Trial.

Governor Montague has honored a resolution from the Governor of West Virginia, passed by the Legislature of that State, for one Marshall Morton, who is in jail for murder, and who is in jail in Newport News.

The Excellency has issued a like paper on the Governor of South Carolina, for James Burns, who is wanted in Fredericksburg for murder.

SENTIMENT IS DIVIDED

Some Temperance People Do Not Think Law So Bad After All.

FIGHT BY NO MEANS OVER

Action of the Governor Awaited With Interest—Not Thought He Will Let Measure Die.

The very liveliest interest is being manifested in the probable action of Governor Montague with reference to the recent legislation removing the jail penalty from the violation of the Sabbath laws. It is understood that several gentlemen have called upon him, and to one of these His Excellency stated that he was opposed to the new measure. He indicated, however, that the Governor cannot always let bills die to which he might have some personal objections. It is very widely believed that the Governor will not refuse his signature to this particular measure, and that it will speedily become law.

A rather striking and decidedly interesting situation is beginning to present itself with reference to this much discussed new law. The temperance sentiment itself is very much divided. The Sunday Observance League, which was intensely surprised when the bill passed the Senate, has not changed its opinion, and is by no means done with the fight. The secretary of the organization said yesterday that he thought the enactment a ridiculous one that simply opened the way for the saloon-keepers to violate the law.

But among many temperance people a different view is beginning to be taken. Some of the most ardent opponents of the saloon believe that the new law is certainly not half as good as a well known minister of Richmond said yesterday that had he been in the Legislature he would undoubtedly have voted against anything that would tend to remove any of the safeguards against Sunday desecration. But he believed, nevertheless, that the penalty was excessive, as compared with the penalty for other misdemeanors. This minister is a well known advocate of temperance. He said he believed there was more of the sentimental than anything else behind the move of the saloon-keepers to get the imprisonment feature removed. They do not want to be placed in the same category with common jail-birds and criminals.

THE HERALD'S OPINION.

The Religious Herald, a Baptist organ, will appear to-morrow with a brief editorial in which it will sound a note very much similar to that indicated above as existing elsewhere. The Herald will say:

"Before the passage of the Mann bill the law of Virginia provided two penalties following for selling liquor on Sunday, viz: fine, compulsory, and revocation of license—discretionary with the judge. The Mann bill continued those penalties and added confinement in jail, making them all compulsory. The bill just enacted by the Legislature removes the penalty of imprisonment, but otherwise leaves the Mann bill untouched in this respect. In another respect, however, it is greatly modified. Under the bill just passed the liquor dealer is liable to conviction for keeping his place open, whereas, under the Mann law, it was necessary to prove actual sale. If we had been in the Legislature we should have voted against the new law. And yet many of the warmest friends of temperance legislation and supporters of the Mann bill voted for it. Some of them say that excessive penalties make conviction more difficult; that in heavy fines and compulsory revocation of license ample protection is found; that the jail sentence brings peculiar suffering upon the offender, as well as his family. They think that the present law in its actual, practical operation, will be more effective than that which it displaces. The temperance people, at any rate, need not be unduly depressed or discouraged. The present law, if vigilantly and faithfully enforced, will break up the Sunday liquor traffic. Let us see to it that the law is carried out."

As will be observed, the Herald calls attention to a new feature of the Sunday law embodied in the recent legislation—the provision that the saloon-keeper be fined and his license revoked if the place is simply open to be open. This is regarded as of the utmost importance. The greatest difficulty heretofore has been to get evidence of actual sales made in saloons on Sunday. It will be comparatively easy to observe whether or not the places are simply open on Sunday.

CHURCH NOTES.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur B. Lloyd, of New York, general secretary of foreign and domestic missions of the Episcopal Church in the United States, preached here yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The contributions for foreign missions from all Christian denominations was only $5,000,000. He said that all the Episcopal Church needed was $2,000,000 a year, which would mean a contribution of $2 a year from each communicant.
